For anglers that prefer a riveted boat with a true V-bottom that doesn't just mind a little choppy water, but actually CRAVES it, the Kodiak, by Polar Kraft should be top-of-mind for your next boat. Complimented by extra wide gunwales for heavy-duty trolling and down riggers, Great Lakes species won't have a place to hide. Storage compartments are exceptional for planer boards, rain gear, and anything else an angler considers must-have gear.

KODIAK

The Frontier carries a budget-friendly price, but this riveted boat is far from entry-level. It comes packed with features including Polar Kraft's Fast-Trak system that makes mounting down riggers and other accessories a near custom experience. It's at home on inland lakes but has the brawn in larger models to handle the big pond. Take your pick from side console or walk-through models and fuel conscience anglers will appreciate the standard lifting pad that helps get the Frontier on plane with less horsepower. Stern jump seats are comfortable when running but can be folded down for more deck space when it's time to cast.

If rivers or inland lakes are what you favor either as a bass or crappie angler, or a goose or duck hunting specialist, the welded Sportsman can slip into that skinny water to get you to the honey hole - whether it's loaded with mallards or feeding largemouth. Tiller models are available for those that need extra maneuverability, but side and console models are offered, as well. This tough utility rig, available in all-camo, gets the job done to go after whatever protein you favor.

SPORTX

Aluminum bass boats are gaining popularity because they are drier than ever before and cost much less than their glass competition, while not sacrificing features. More and more anglers on professional bass tours are piloting them every season. Deck space is generous and can hold all your species-specific bass rods ready for action if the flippin' bite changes to top water. If you love bass but love a crappie fry too, "C" models offer an extra livewell for you and your partner.

If an angler likes “tempting the tides” and fishing skinny marshes for redfish but wants the ability to get to deeper water as the tide goes out, the Bay Boat by Polar Kraft is a great insurance policy. The ability to navigate tight spaces when needed but still handle the intracoastal waterways when the wrong wind blows make this welded boat great for salty and brackish waters. If your baitfish or gamefish get messy, a Tundra Coating is standard, but a SeaDek upgrade is available.

Are all Jon boats the same? Most people think so, but when you've been fine tuning and tweaking your Jon boat design and construction for more than 65 years - like we have been at Polar Kraft - we say "No, All Jon Boats are Not the Same!" Ours are better - because we handcraft each one and test it to make sure that it is worthy to carry the Polar Kraft name.

HULL STRUCTURE

A dentist doesn't fill half a cavity so why do some boat manufacturers? Polar Kraft goes to extreme lengths to fill our hull chambers with urethane closed cell foam which creates more buoyancy for safety and a quieter rig in shallow water to reduce spooking fish.

1

ANGLED POWER BARS

Counteract the twisting action of the engine's weight and thrust, transferring this torque energy across the boat's entire hull.

2

REINFORCED BOW SUPPORT

Provides rigidity, consistency and energy dispersion when hitting a wave.

3

TORQUE BOXES

Formed by the I-beam transverse bulkheads that are found throughout the lower hull section — provides superior strength and the smoothest ride on the water.

6 STURDY I-BEAM LONGITUDINAL STRINGERS

Run the entire length of the boat and combine with traverse bulkheads to create torque boxes that provide each Polar Kraft boat with exceptional support of the running surface, which translates into a smoother ride.

EXTRA THICK HULL DESIGN

Polar Kraft boats are hand-formed out of the thickest aluminum on the market — making our boats the toughest in the industry. All Polar Kraft Models are constructed of 5052 Marine Grade Aluminum (17 feet and larger: 0.125").

URETHANE CLOSED CELL FOAM

A dentist doesn't fill half a cavity so why do some boat manufacturers? Polar Kraft goes to extreme lengths to fill our hull chambers with urethane closed cell foam which creates more buoyancy for safety and a quieter rig in shallow water to reduce spooking fish.

REVERSE CHINE

Experience increased stability, better fuel economy, faster on-plane performance, and more responsive handling.

8

EXTRUDED LIFTING STAKES

Excellent bow lift at cruising speeds, enhanced maneuverability and additional reinforcements on the hull create a smoother and drier ride.

TRAILERS

Polar Kraft trailers are custom built to our boats, so they fit perfectly, versus other manufacturers that use a "base" trailer for multiple boats and then adjust bunks and rails to fit. Superior paint is standard with each all-steel frame being sandblasted clean prior to priming and painting. A Safe-T Lube system on axles for servicing bearings is handy as is a space-saving Swing Tongue. To help prevent slipping when getting in and out of our boats, fenders are steel, while other companies use plastic fenders that flex. Ratchet straps, a spare tire, Swing Jack and Fulton winch are all standard.

VERSATILITY

If you like to fish, but you LOVE your duck and goose excursions, then the camouflage versions of the Outlander, Sport X, and Sportsman models from Polar Kraft are sure to help you get some banded "memorabilia."

From the feature-packed Outlander, for big water canvasbacks and bluebills, to the basic functionality of the mod-v Sportsman for mallards and delicious teal in the sloughs, you can hunt deep or skinny or skinny water. water. As with any Polar Kraft, it's your choice to be as luxurious or as basic as you want to be in deep.
